NCMS Alliance Annual Meeting
April 16-17, 2009 in Charlotte, NC

The NCMS Alliance invites all members to be a part of the 2009 Annual Meeting on April 16 and 17 at the Hampton Inn & Suites SouthPark at Phillips Place in Charlotte, NC.

The conference includes a number of special events, presentations and speakers to help celebrate a year of incredible health promotion projects and a shared commitment to building healthy communities in North Carolina. The 2009 Awards Session will recognize members and county Alliances for outstanding achievements and honor 30 and 50 year Alliance members.

The NCMS Alliance is pleased to have AMA Alliance Director Julie Weir take part in this year’s program. Weir, who is from Kearney, Nebraska, was elected to her position in June 2008 and also serves as a member of the AMA Alliance Finance Committee. She will join NCMS Alliance President Beverly Wright in welcoming members during the opening session and preside over the installation of 2009-2010 state officers and board members.

The program also features a special presentation on the Go Red For Women Campaign. The campaign is a national movement founded by the American Heart Association (AHA) to help fight back against the number one killer of American women.
Spring is just around the corner. As we look forward to warm weather and longer days, the NCMSA is looking forward to our Annual Meeting. This year our board has restructured our fund raising projects. We have reevaluated our community service projects and worked to develop new projects. We look forward to unveiling these at the Annual Meeting.

As we move ahead to our new Alliance projects, I would like to encourage our members to take on a couple of personal projects. First, I would like everyone to put ICE in their cellphone. For those of you who think that the stress has finally gotten to me… ICE means “In Case of Emergency.” Putting the acronym ICE next to one of the names stored in your cell phone allows emergency personnel to immediately know whom to call if you are not able to communicate. Secondly, I would like to encourage everyone to put the poison control number (800-848-6946) in your cell phone and in your home with the other emergency numbers. While you can get this number by calling 911, having it stored will save a step. Poison Control is not just for swallowed poisons. They are able to give helpful advice for dealing with many harmful substances and even know how to remove cactus needles which are so small that they are almost invisible.

This year’s Annual Meeting will provide an opportunity for our members to meet and network while learning new skills, learning about the new projects of the NCMSA and hearing guest speakers including Sharyn McCrumb, author of St. Dale. Our Annual Meeting Committee has endeavored to plan events that will appeal to all of our members. In addition to the information sessions and speakers, there will be opportunities to learn what is happening in other parts of the state and to share ideas. There will also be opportunities to get to know other Alliance members at social events. I look forward to seeing many of you there.
Alliance Members Advocate for America’s Health

2009 AMA Alliance Capitol Conference

Alliance members will gather in Washington, D.C. March 9-11 to show unity with the advocacy agenda of the American Medical Association (AMA) on behalf of their spouses and to gain personal growth and leadership skills benefiting Alliance goals for the families of medicine.

For three days, the Alliance will work side by side, participating in the AMA Alliance Capitol Conference, Winter Session, and the AMA’s National Advocacy Conference (NAC).

The first day, the Alliance Capitol Conference-Winter Session consists of educational programming covering a wide range of topics, including fundraising and development, how to talk to legislators and “Screen Out!” training.

Alliance President Sandi Frost will give a presentation called “21st Century Medical Families: Engaged, Enlightened and Empowered.” The presentation will discuss the changing demographics in medical families, work/life balance, stress reduction and the importance of joint advocacy and community outreach efforts.

Alliance members interested in attending the conference should visit the AMA Alliance website at www.amaalliance.org or call 312-464-4470. Look for an update in the next Tandem with reports from members attending the conference from North Carolina.

NCMS Alliance Delegates to Consider Changes to Bylaws

The NCMS Alliance House of Delegates will consider several motions that include changes to the state Alliance Bylaws on April 17 during the 2009 Annual Meeting in Charlotte. The Board of Directors approved bringing the motions forward for consideration by the House of Delegates during its January 2009 meeting.

The first proposed Bylaws change would impact the composition of the House of Delegates. Currently, each county Alliance is allocated four (4) delegates that may vote during the House of Delegates meeting. The recommendation from the Bylaws Committee and the Board of Directors would remove the allocation limits and allow all state members to vote as part of the House of Delegates.

The second proposed Bylaws change creates a new officer position and an additional standing committee for the NCMS Alliance. Several motions will be presented during the House of Delegates meeting that will establish a Vice President of Membership Development position and a Membership Development Committee, which would become a separate standing committee.

The full text of the proposed changes and motions to be considered by the 2009 House of Delegates are posted on the NCMS Alliance web site at www.ncmsalliance.org. If you have any questions or need more information, please do not hesitate to contact the state office or any member of the NCMS Alliance Board of Directors.

The NCMS Alliance is proud to announce the selection of North Carolina as host of the 2010 Southern Region Alliance Leadership Development Conference. The region just completed its third annual conference in Atlanta, GA drawing more than 50 participants representing twelve states including Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Louisiana, Mississippi, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas, Virginia and North Carolina.

The conference provides an opportunity to highlight state and county Alliance health projects in North Carolina and from across the region. The two-day program focuses on supporting Alliance members in their shared commitment to building healthy communities. Details will be available soon on the schedule and location for the event.

help Shape the Future of the NCMS Alliance

Looking for a chance to help shape the future of the NCMS Alliance?
Then the 2009-2010 Board Development Committee needs YOU!

There are four (4) open positions on the state Board Development Committee for 2009-2010. The committee takes the lead in shaping the state Board of Directors for the next year. Board Development Committee members serve a one-year term which begins this spring at the end of the House of Delegates Meeting on April 17, 2009. The committee will meet at least twice by teleconference during the year.

We want to hear from you. If you are interested in being a part of this important but fun process, please contact Beverly Wright by e-mail at bbwright100@aol.com or call the state office at 919-833-3836 x124 no later than March 27.
One in nine North Carolinians has chronic kidney disease (CKD) and most of them are not aware of it. Among the fifty states, North Carolina ranks 9th in the percentage of its citizens whose disease progresses to the latter stage of CKD. Often referred to as end-stage kidney disease (ESKD), this latter stage is when a person’s kidneys fail to function and kidney replacement therapy (dialysis or transplantation) is necessary for survival. Diabetes mellitus, hypertension, heart disease and a family history of CKD are the primary risk factors for CKD. However, being either African American, Native American, Asian, Pacific Islander, over 60 years of age, a smoker, or overweight also increases a person’s risk of developing CKD. The good news is that CKD can be prevented in many instances and the progression of the disease can be dramatically slowed, but this requires early intervention — before clinical symptoms are apparent. Most often, delayed diagnosis and intervention result from low CKD awareness among at-risk persons, primary care physicians (PCPs) and cardiologists.

In March 2008, the NC Institute of Medicine Task Force on Chronic Kidney Disease published its final report. Recommendations include establishing statewide awareness programs; expanding targeted, free screenings for the uninsured; requesting all NC laboratories to supplement serum creatinine scores with estimated GFR’s supplemented with interpretative information; and providing guidelines for collaborative patient management by PCPs and nephrologists. A final report and a complete list of recommendations can be found at http://www.nciom.org/projects/chronic_kidney_disease.html.

Persons with the primary risk factors for CKD should ask their PCPs to assess their kidney function. The estimated glomerular filtration rate (eGFR) is the best measure of one’s kidney function. The eGFR uses the blood serum creatinine score, race and gender to generate a two-digit score that represents a person’s percentage of kidney function. You can go to http://www.kidney.org/professionals/kdoqi/gfr_calculator.cfm to generate your eGFR if you have your serum creatinine score. A self-assessment tool, SCORED, is also available at the following site: http://www.unckidneycenter.org/testscore.htm. Answer nine questions and determine whether you are at increased risk for CKD.

The UNC Kidney Center has implemented a statewide Kidney Education Outreach Program (KEOP). Three primary components compose the KEOP: 1) community-based focus groups, 2) interactive education sessions complemented by media campaigns with local citizens as spokespeople, and 3) free CKD screenings. Diabetes mellitus, hypertension, heart disease and a family history of CKD are the primary risk factors for CKD. However, being either African American, Native American, Asian, Pacific Islander, over 60 years of age, a smoker, or overweight also increases the risk of developing CKD. The KEOP has purchased a mobile outreach unit and participates in health fairs and presents interactive information sessions across North Carolina.

Over the past 30 months, the KEOP has conducted free screenings for over 1,700 at-risk persons across 14 counties. On Saturday, March 21st, the KEOP will host its fourth annual Kidney Kare 5K Run/Walk to raise funds for the free screenings and outreach. CKD remains in the shadows of health awareness — it is an expensive disease in terms of treatment and its debilitating effects on a patient’s and the immediate family’s quality of life are dramatic.

And, please, remember to ask... HEY DOC, HOW ARE MY KIDNEYS?™
